- Select suitable scholarly journals
- Promote research content in ASNS

Scholarly journals:

- These journals have an editorial board of subject experts who
 - Review
 - Evaluate
 - Fine tune
 - Comment on the submitted articles
 - Helps to improve the quality of the research paper before accepting it for publication.

Scholarly journal: How do I find it?

- Peer reviewed journals.
- Journals with high impact factor.
- Journals indexed in citation databases:
 - Scopus
 - Web of Science
 - Google Scholar etc.,
 - UGC care list

Peer review:

Single-blind peer review

- The identity of the reviewer is anonymous, but the author's name and affiliation are on the paper.

Double blind review

- The reviewers of the paper won't get to know the identity of the author(s), and the author(s) won't get to know the identity of the reviewer.

Triple blind review

- Here, not only are authors and reviewers blind to each other's identities but where editors are also blind to the identity of both.

Scholarly journal: Why should you choose?

- Increase the research visibility

- Increases your visibility of publications
- Process of making the research findings visible to the scholarly community
- To get more citations.

Predatory journals:

- Predatory journals are open-access medical journals that publish articles online with no peer review, low academic standards, and little credibility.
 - Fraudulent
 - Deceptive
 - Pseudo/junk/low-rated /substandard journals

Why Predatory journals are threat?

- There are about 15,000+ predatory journals
- 4,20,000+ articles were published in 8,000 predatory journals in 2014
- In 2023, 7,87,000+ articles were published
- Authors paid money for publishing articles.

The bad news:

- India's misconduct-related retraction rate is very high
- Research Scholars started to publish more papers in predatory journals.
- The UGC has removed more than 4,500+ journals on that are either predatory or low quality.
- The publishers do not follow the proper academic standards for publishing.
- In contrast, high quality academic journals take longer to publish articles because they go through a proper peer review.

Typical signs of predatory journals:

- More advertisement
- “International journal of”
- Sending emails to the author to submit the articles
- Demand for article processing fee
- No editorial board.

Typical signs of predatory journals:

- The website contains spelling and grammar errors
- Manuscripts are requested to be submitted via email
- The contact email address is non-professional and non-journal affiliated (e.g., @gmail.com or @yahoo.com)
- There is no retraction policy
- Rapid publication is promised
- Imitating journal titles by slightly changing the words,
- Demanding high APCs after accepting the article,
- Non-existent editorial board members
- Fake impact factors and
- Claiming their journals are indexed in reputed databases

Hijacked Journals:

- A list of hijacked journals has been created by a librarian, Jeffrey Beall (<https://beallslist.net/hijacked-journals/>).
- Sometimes someone will create a website that pretends to be the website of a legitimate scholarly journal

Before publishing articles, you need to think...

- Do you/your colleagues know the journal?
- Have you read any articles in the journal before?
- Name of the journal: the name is unique; it is not the same or easily confused with another journal.

Who is the publisher?

- Can you easily identify and contact the publisher?
- Is the publisher's name clearly displayed on the journal website?
- Can you contact the publisher by telephone, email, and post?

What is the Prereview process?

- Is the journal clear about the type of peer review it uses?
- Does the website mention whether the process involves independent/external reviewers, how many reviewers per paper?
- The journal doesn't guarantee acceptance or a very short peer review time.

Research Visibility:

- How well the scholarly articles of a researcher are visible to the scholarly community.
- To what extent the research articles are noticed by the research community in the scholarly world.
- If your research articles are visible and accessible to other, then:
