KNOWLEDGE AND WISDOM

- Bertrand Russell

About the Author

Bertrand Russell (1872-1970) philosopher and mathematician was a voluminous writer on politics, religion, science, education, peace and individual liberty. He was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature in 1950.

"Knowledge and wisdom" is taken from the book 'Portraits from Memory and Other Essays'. In this essay he laments the fact that while they are expanding fast, there had not been corresponding growth in wisdom. Wisdom, in the sense of comprehensive vision and of a awareness of the needs of human lives, is not to be seen today. We find people with wide knowledge but narrow feelings.

Most people would agree that our age far surpasses all previous ages in knowledge. There has been no correlative increase in wisdom. This has become more difficult than it used to be owing to the extent and complexity of the specialized knowledge required of various kinds of technicians.

Summary of the Seminar presentation:

Lord Ullin's Daughters

- Thomas Campbell.

Inspired by the Scottish tradition of chivalry and romance, Thomas Campbell's ballad Lord Ullin's Daughters centres around the theme of love and sacrifice portrayed through a narrative involving a chieftain, his beloved, the king and others. Considered to be one of the most popular romantic poems of Campbell, the poem unfolds the story of the attempted elopement resulting in the death of the couple. Well-structured and set in a lyrical tone with a regular rhyme scheme, the poem has a curious beginning, a terrifying middle and a tragic end.

In the beginning, the poem portrays that a chieftain is appealing to a boatman to ferry him and his beloved despite, promises to reward the boatman with a silver pound on helping him and his beloved, Lord Ullin's daughters, to elope to a distant land.

The chieftain in order to persuade the boatman to help them elope narrates that he and his beloved have been fleeing for three days. To win over the heart of the boatman, the chieftain reiterates that in case he and his beloved are caught by the king's men, they will kill him leaving his beloved to sigh forever. Giving up his reluctance, the boatman agrees to ferry them to a distant land.

Topic of the Seminar: Cause for water pollution

Summary of the Seminar presentation:

Water pollution is a major environmental problem not only for human beings but for all creatures on the earth. In order to prevent water pollution we must know the causes, effects & preventive measures. It occurs when water gets contaminated by human wastes, animal wastes, toxic chemicals, oils, etc. It can affect rain, rivers, lakes, oceans & also the ground water.

Natural form of water pollution is due to erosion, usually caused by the rainfall & run-off on a slope. High percentage of water pollution is a result of the various human activities.

The act of people bathing, washing clothes, bathing the animals & cleaning utensils in the ponds & canals also lead to contamination of water sources. In homes, domestic waste effluents are discharged into drains & eventually into water bodies without proper treatment of that water.

There are some cities along with the banks of the river where after the death of a person, his body is drained into the water.

Lord Ullin's Daughter

The poem Lord Ullin's Daughter

written by Thomas Campbell in the form of a ballad. Like all ballads it tells a story and the story is two unfortunate lovers. The story ends in a tragedy.

A Scottish chieftain of Ullin's Isle is in love with Lord Ullin's daughter and Ullin was simply disgusted with the union, so the lovers ran away to escape the wrath of Lord Ullin. The lovers are used on horse-back by Lord Ullin and a man. The lovers reach the shore of a rough sea. The chieftain asks the boatman to save them.

The boatman is reluctant at first because of the tempest in the sea. Later he agrees to undertake the deadly voyage because he is cured by the girl's beauty. He also accepts the chieftain's offer of a pound of silver. The boat enters the tempestuous waters, a storm grows more fierce, the waves are very high, soon the storm grows fiercer
