What Rejections and Failures Teach You About Living A Successful Life?

By Sahala Parveen

A Report

The Department of English (UG) held Ted Talk on 30th January 2019 at 10:15 am for the students of BA II/IV/VI semesters on the topic “What Rejections and Failures Teach You About Living A Successful Life?” by Sahala Parveen, who is the author of the book entitled ‘The Beauty of Purpose in Life’. Its all about her story of success which was not possible without her struggle/effort.

She shared her past incidents which were like new seeds for her reformation and success. Though she was below average student she worked hard and overcome by the disease Dyslexia. She said ‘A single motivational session at her college changed her life’. Her talk teaches us to believe in our dreams

She work hard, started to read lots and lots of books, started to love books, started to engage a class for juniors (training session regarding mind), she faced all ups & downs.

She engaged one training session for elders when she was just 23. Some one said to her that she was too young to engage such classes for elders so she was depressed. But she had overcome that situation when she heard the quote by Brown “You are never to young to start teaching and never too old to learning”. Further she said the T.V Interviewer tagged her as “Youngest mind power trainer” after this the training organization which rejected her invited her to be as the trainer there.

So, Sahala Parveen suggests the audience to ‘Be yourself, listen to your heart’, ‘don’t give up easily’ and ‘Be happy’.
