TED TALK by Shukla Bose

Topic: Teaching One Child at One Time.

Educating Our Poor (more than a number game)

A Report

The students of B.A.I Semester studying Basic English assembled in the Seminar hall to watch an interesting and inspiring TED TALK highlighting the basis and importance of true education in slum dwellers life. Shukla Bose in her talk takes the audience through her journey of educating the poor. She emphasis that it is not the infrastructure or the library that is important in the learning process. It is content of learning, creating an environment of learning, and enquiry that is important in imparting true education.

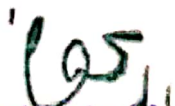

Bose began her journey with the objective of educating one poor child at one time with the establishment of Parikrama Humanity Foundation in 2003. She choose Bangalore where 2 million people lived in 800 slums.

Bose through this talk dispels certain myths with regard to children living in slums. They are as follows:

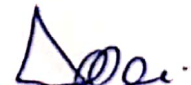

- 1) Children from slums cannot speak English.
- 2) People in slums do not want to send their children to schools.
- 3) Children from slums cannot integrate with people from main stream.

Bose started her first school on a roof top in a slum where 70,000 people lived. She enrolled 165 students in an academic year.

- Today the foundation runs four schools and a junior college.

- There are 1100 children from 28 slums and 04 orphanages studying in schools.
- The children from these schools excel in academics as well as sports.
- One girl who was working as a house maid was enrolled and she was selected as one among 28 students from elite schools for Duke University Talent Identification Programme and sent to IMM Ahmedabad.
- The children bring bags full of medals after participating in inter-athletic meet organized in Bengaluru every year.
- The school has been awarded 'The Best School Award' for three consecutive years.
- The Foundation also runs a number of other programmes such as :
  - ✓ Vocational skill programme for older siblings
  - ✓ Teaching parents especially mothers in 'After School Programme'.
  - ✓ Sending alcoholic fathers to de-addiction centers and giving them jobs so that they do not regress.

The talk concludes on a very positive note that Parusharam a small boy begging in the street was enrolled in Kindergarten. He can now speak in English and in a few years Bose promises that he would speak in TED conference.

Bose states that she started the journey to transform the world but the children's love, compassion, imagination and creativity has transformed her.

The students after watching the TED TALK shared their views about the talk. A written Feedback was also collected from the students. 113 students of B.A. I Semester attended the TED TALK programme.
