Politics in Education

As an academic discipline the study of politics in education has two main roots; The first root is based on theories from political science while the second root is footed in organizational Theory Political science attempts to explain how societies and social organization use power To establish regulations and allocate resources. Organizational theory uses scientific theories Of management to develop deeper understandings regarding the function of organizations.

There exist significant difference between " politics of Education" and "Politics in Education ". More debates on the prevailing differences are solicited from Academia of the world to define politics educationally.

Memory and Forgetting

Human memory, like memory in a computer, allows us to store information for later use in order to do this, however, both the computer and we need to master three processes involved in memory. The first is called encoding the process we use to transform information so that it can be stored. For a computer this means transforming the data into a meaningful form such as an association with a name. Association with an existing memory, an image, or a sound.

You can't talk about remembering without mentioning its counterpart. It seems that as much as we do remember, we forget even more.
